CHILDHOOD CONFIRMED

Leslie spent a week in Michigan, skiing outside Kalamazoo, going to hockey games and teen-parties where they promptly dubbed her "Tex." While a cousin was practicing cross-country track, she and her uncle and aunt went to Northern Indiana to meet family she had never seen. Kindest of all was her mention of a drive around town and country when another uncle and aunt showed her "the polo farm, the high school you (NOW) went to, the lakes and the tennis courts you (NOW) used." She went out to a nearby town where another cousin showed off Leslie's youngest second cousin, Jas-sie, "who came to me (Leslie) and didn't want to go back to Bev (Les' cousin) when we left."

Back in Michigan, she tried sledding on a place outside Kalamazoo, but the snow was too wet.

It sounded familiar and okay to Les. And if it's okay by her, it's okay, as Michael Corelone, Godfather II, said, "believe me."

NOW-NOW-NOW

Looking at the Texas Education Agency's survey of the CISD, the four-member team summed up school physical needs with:

"In several instances, a lack of needed instruction-service areas and equipment severely hampered the district's efforts to develop and conduct an effective, varied, and flexible program. The breadth of the curriculum has direct relationship with the physical facilities of a school."

A lot is going to be done about that. Believe me. For Les and Martin and maybe 1700 other kids.

Area Roundup

Vandals Smash School Windows

GATESVILLE

Vandals broke out glass in 12 windows on the south side of the Gatesville High School building, causing damage estimated at $120. Rocks and sticks were used to break the panes. A night earlier a large window at the front of the primary school building was shattered by a pellet gun or similar weapon.

Christmas Roundup A Success

ROCKDALE

"Response was great!" That's the summation of Rockdale's 1974 Christmas roundup program. The program provided for 38 families with 143 children. Roundup provided food and toys for needy families. Some shoes and clothes will also be furnished with Roundup funds. Roundup was a joint project of the Rockdale Noon and Evening Lions, Jaycees, Optimist and Rotary clubs.

No Gold Rush In Lampasas

LAMPASAS

Banned for the past 40 years, the legalization of the private ownership of gold has set up something less than a clamor in Lampasas. It appears there will be no "gold rush" here. Area bankers say very little local interest has been shown in investing in gold futures.

Deaths From 'Honest Mistake'

WACO

Methadone overdoses given two Waco men who died after taking the drug for the first time Dec. 24 "resulted from an honest mistake," Heart of Texas Region Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center board of trustees reported Thursday. The board said those dispensing the drug thought they were giving ten milligrams of methadone when they were actually giving 100 milligrams.

City Garbage Rates Hiked

TEMPLE

The Temple city commission voted to adopt a new city garbage ordinance with rate hikes and an amendment to keep tub out service as an option for a higher fee. The ordinance effective Feb. 1 increases residential rates to a uniform $2.50 a month. Tub out service, for those residents without alleys, will cost an additional $1.50 a month.

Ambulance Problem Studied

CALDWELL

An ambulance committee, consisting of civic and governmental officials are meeting this month to discuss solutions and improvements to the county ambulance service. With recent federal regulations determining the qualifications of the service, the present managers cannot legally operate after Jan. 1.

City Plans Development

HEARNE

James W. McGrew, executive director of the Hearne Urban Renewal Agency, who heads the new Community Development Agency, listed 10 main items needed in the city at a public hearing on the city's proposed community development program. They include drainage, paving, curb and gutter, clearance and demolition, fire protection, code enforcement, solid waste disposal, lights, sanitary sewers, parks.

Bill Can't Close Office

SOMERVILLE

In an interview with the Tribune newspaper, Burleson County School Superintendent Mervin Cross said that the office of county school superintendent cannot be closed by a local bill in the State Legislature. Cross said this was an opinion by State Atty. Gen. John Hill, who said the office can be abolished only through an election.

GOING AIRBORNE - Seven new members of the Cameron unit of the Texas Army Guard will soon be going airborne. Shown with their recruiters and Sgt. John L. Lansford, are seven local residents. Back row, Douglas Zanders, Onesino Sanchez Jr., Jimmy Brown (in cab), Billy Andrews, Johnny Alvarado (on cab), and Sgt. Lansford, Front row, Sgt. Thomas W. Mincey, Chief Warrant Officer Don Schlessinger, Sgt. First Class Howard McAlvain, Roy Jones, Sgt. Turner G. Haywood, and Howard Pruitt. The seven recruits will be leaving for basic training followed by airborne school on Jan. 11.

License Plates Change To 'Multi-Year'

AUSTIN

If all goes according to plan, the Texas motor vehicle license plate might soon outlast the motor vehicle that "wears" it.

Beginning February 1, the majority of motor vehicles operating in Texas may be eligible for use of the new "multi-year" license plate, renewable annually for five years of driving. According to Bob Townsley, Director of the Highway Department's Motor Vehicle Division, approximately 9.2 million renewal notices are already in the mail to vehicle owners announcing the fact.

"Motorist will notice no change in the registration procedure this year," said Townsley. "Only the license plate to be issued will be different."

Instead of the usual metal plate, a heavier, non-corrosive steel will be used for greater endurance. Also, the plate will be reflectorized and will feature black letters and numerals on a white field, considered by experts to be the most readable color combination.

"The real change in registration procedure will come in 1976," explained the Highway Department official. Next year, instead of buying a new license plate, owners will purchase a 1 by 2 inch adhesive type validation tag that will be placed in the debossed upper left corner of the plate. In 1977, the tag will be stuck in the upper right corner to cover the debossed "75," and alternated for the ensuing years.

Townsley said the tags cannot be easily removed without deterioration, a part of the plan to discourage vandalism or theft.

Motorists are encouraged to register their vehicles early and avoid the "last minute" rush. Registrants may apply by mail immediately, or "in person" at their county tax office and substations beginning February 1. Mail applicants are reminded to return the entire renewal notice along with their payment and one dollar per vehicle to cover postage and handling. Allow at least 30 days for delivery of plates. The registration deadline is midnight, April 1.

CTCOG Gets Grant

The Central Texas Council of Governments (CTCOG) has been awarded a Child Abuse and Neglect Demonstration Resource Project Grant in the amount of $60,000 by the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Harper Looks At Alcoa Year

Entering 1975, the aluminum industry is well positioned in our nation's marketplace, said John D. Harper, chairman and chief executive officer of Aluminum Company of America, in an optimistic year-end commentary.

"Despite a softening in the nation's economy, which caused demand for aluminum to ease in the final half of 1974, the industry displayed remarkable strength in shipments and had a record year in production of primary metal," Harper explained. "Prices were strong and progress was made toward an adequate return to invested capital."

"In 1975, we can expect shipments to be held in check not only by the depth and duration of the present recession, but by the anticipated reduction in aluminum supply as well."

He noted the federal stockpile of primary aluminum, which supplied almost a billion pounds of metal in 1974, is virtually exhausted. The stockpile depletion, along with "an almost zero" expansion in primary smelting in the United States, will result in a net supply drop in 1975 of about seven percent from 1974 from these two sources alone.

"It also is possible that continued increases in power costs might render some potlines uneconomical to operate," he said. "But taking all factors into consideration, it is obvious that the decline in supply in 1975 will be significant in cushioning the effects of any additional softness that might occur in aluminum markets."

In Texas, where Alcoa produces most of its metal, the firm has two major construction projects. "Construction is progressing on an Alcoa smelter in Anderson County, near Palestine, which will advance the aluminum industry's outstanding record for unit power-use reductions," Harper said. "Potlines operating 30 years ago required an average of 12 kilowatt hours per pound of metal produced. As a result of intensive research, the national average today is 8.5 kilowatts, while the most efficient modern smelters use only 6.5. The new Alcoa smelter will permit a further 30 percent reduction in power use to 4.5 kilowatts."

The new smelter, scheduled to be on stream in 1976 with initial capacity of 30,000 tons a year and an ultimate goal of 300,000, uses the revolutionary Alcoa Smelting Process. The method, developed by Alcoa over 15 years at a cost of $25 million, uses a system free of undesirable emissions.

And while Alcoa currently generates about half its smelters' power

Accidental Shot Injures Woman Near Thorndale

An accidental gunshot wound sent a Walburg woman to a Taylor hospital New Year's Eve but no charges have been filed in the incident.

Sheriff Carl Black investigated the mishap and said Mrs. Doris Herzog was shot when her husband dropped a pistol on the floor and it went off. The Herzogs were visiting relatives at the Leeman place north of Thorndale when the accident occurred about 10:45 p.m.

Bloodmobile

Returns Jan. 14

Cameron's first blood drive of 1975 will be held January 14 in the Methodist Fellowship Hall.

The Central Texas Red Cross Bloodmobile visits Cameron four times a year to collect life-saving blood to be distributed to area hospitals where it will be used to help the ill and injured regain their health.

If you are one of Cameron's regular donors, you know the fulfillment that comes with giving a part of your life blood to help someone else. Please pass the word along to your friends and neighbors.

If you have not yet begun to give blood, please take this opportunity to start a habit of caring--you'll feel better for it.

Farm Census Now Underway All Over U.S.

The 1974 Census of Agriculture got underway the week of December 29 with the mailing of about four million report forms to farms and ranches in the United States, according to Vincent P. Barabba, director of the Bureau of the Census, said.

This is the 20th such farm census since it started in 1840.

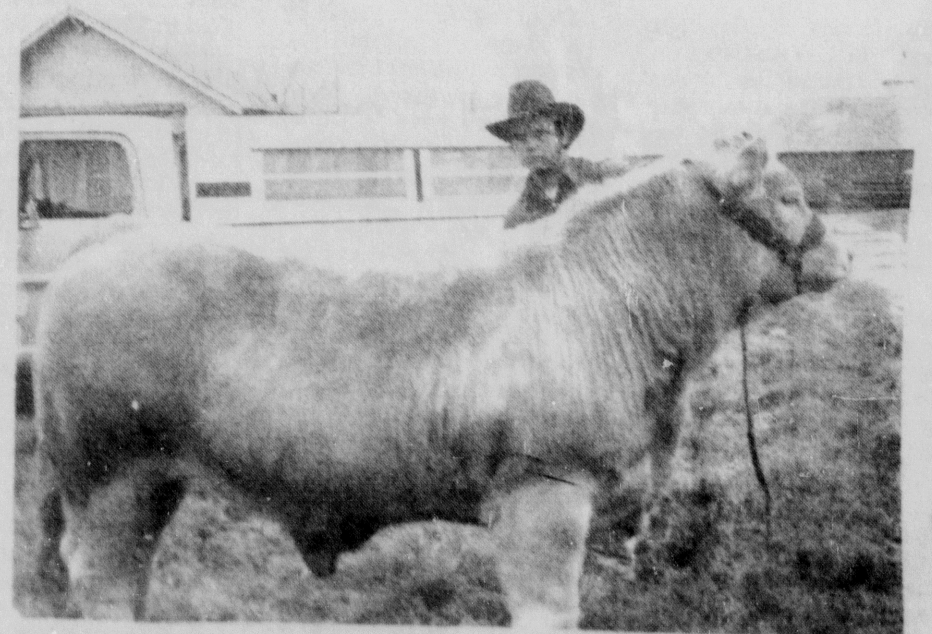

Farmers and ranchers are asked to report on their agricultural operations during 1974. The census will update data most recently obtained in 1970 for 1969 operations.

To avoid undue burden on small farmers and to reduce processing costs, a short version of the census report form is being mailed to the over one million addresses estimated to have had both farm receipts and expenses of less than $2,000 in 1973.

Complete forms are to be mailed back as soon as possible. Census by mail allows operators to fill out their reports at their convenience and use their farm business records. Estimates are acceptable and should be reported in the absence of records.

Recipients of census farm report forms are cautioned not to discard them. Follow-up mailings costing additional postage will be required until all forms are received.

Even if the recipient is not farming, the form should be returned with that fact noted.

Gunslinger With Empty Holster...

Lowest in priority, but highest in probability, the U. S. and Western Europe are not without alternatives of force in the oil dilemma.

Henry Kissinger, architect of tenuous Middle East peace, hints the possibility. Only the possibility.

Spectre of Russian support or intervention hangs heavy over such an act, but such implementation, however remote now, would begin with the line of alternatives entwining Russia in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

The scenario may go:

FIRST, identify the unacceptability of further barrel-head diplomacy.

SECOND, advise Soviet Russia the economic integrity of the Western industrial world, not Russia's, is overtly threatened, and to take only an advisory role (as in Cuba, turn back the missile ships.)

THIRD, offer conciliation of the problem to backdate lower oil pricing and long-term phaseout of international oil investment, which is inevitable.

FOUR, reconcile pricing by treaty or obviate Arab control of oil seaport towns by occupation and blockade sea traffic in and out, during which time alternative sources would provide oil to Japan and Western Europe by Japanese tankers.

FIVE, await the prospect of another Israeli-Arab war while arbitration is underway and secure port cities and oilfield pipelines to the sea.

SIX, return the "internationalized oil" to Arab control only when it is clear "gunboat" diplomacy is superior to "barrel-head" diplomacy, the Arabs' seeing necessity of using surplus oil dollars for trade with the West and phase-out payments to Western oil companies for investments in Middle East exploration.

SEVEN, assure that Western oil markets otherwise will dry up within the time that phasing out of international investment is accomplished and alternative sources are developed with Arab surplus payments.

EIGHT, invite Russia to ameliorate differences between Arab oil price and Western consumer offer in terms of what Russia itself would pay for Arab oil for domestic Russian use.

NINE, assure Arab League nations, all of which are not major oil producers (Egypt and Algeria, for example), that Russia or Red China, even with state-controlled economies, are not alternative customers for oil at present prices (Which they aren't and which haven't any more alternative trade items than the West).

Secretary of State Kissinger will be the last to mention such thunderous proposals, but he would be among the first to recommend alternatives to the White House appropriate for a gunslinger with an empty holster.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

SAYS GOLD BUYERS IN LINE TO BE FLEECE

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez (Texas) "... Unless Congress changes existing law, unrestricted private ownership of gold will be legal at the end of (December 1974). Every commodity dealer, every security dealer, and every conceivable kind of con artist is gearing up for that happy day ... Those who comprehend the potential for disaster say that Congress ought to look again at its decision ...

"I have said that a good many people will buy gilded lead. Earlier this autumn, St. Mary's University, which is in my hometown, got suckered into lending a Denver con man $100,000 collateralized by gold. The gold was in fact lead. Even if it had been gold, the school could not have legally held it or sold it. But they did not stoop to ask a few simple questions that any prudent lender would have asked, had the school not allowed itself to be hoodwinked by their own golden gullibility ...

"People, financial institutions, even supposedly sophisticated investors, are lined up and asking to be fleeced - and they will be, as the Treasury candidly admitted yesterday ...

"Investors in gold are not likely to make much, if anything. If they look carefully, they will see that gold pays no interest, its purity is always open to question; its storage and handling costs are great, and the possibility of converting it to cash are not very good ...

"Yesterday the Treasury and Federal Reserve issued some guidelines for banks dealing in gold. These guidelines, boiled down, say to banks, that they cannot be stopped from dealing in gold, so go ahead - but be careful.

"Banks have no more business in dealing in gold commodities than they do in dealing with pork bellies ...

"The Federal Home Loan Bank Board is right in keeping savings institutions out of the gold business altogether. They recognize that gold dealing is exactly what their industry does not need; they understand that gold dealing is dangerous and represents a threat, not an opportunity to savings and loan industry.

"I think Congress ought to reconsider its gold buggery. It is not enough to coyly say that a sucker is born every minute ...

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT
A regulation first imposed in 1917 with "The Trading with the Enemy Act" has been canceled out. "GOLD RUSH" and "GOLD FEVER" may again become common terms.

Some people believe that if it thunders on Sunday, goose eggs won't hatch.

"You might say we didn't come back from Washington empty-handed."

Young Australians Grow Marijuana

Reuter--A group of young Australians openly operating outside the law has developed a suburban marijuana garden into a flourishing business worth more than $65,000 a year.

Launched two years ago as the Dope Smokers Union (DSU), the group has built up a nationwide mail order operation through advertising, established a free legal service and formed a political party to contest the next federal elections.

Founder Peter Carey, 24, a dropout from Adelaide University, says his organization is aiming to move out of the hippie culture into the "middle-aged, respectable market."

"We know a lot of middle aged people are smoking marijuana and we want to reach them, persuade them to start putting pressure on the government to legalize the growing of marijuana," he said.

In recent television and newspaper interviews, Carey said, although operating illegally, the DSU never had been troubled by the law. He said the DSU had enough apparently incriminating information about police activities relating to narcotics traffic to ensure the unions continued freedom of operations.

"Anyway, smoking marijuana has become so common in respectable as well as hippie circles, the police have given up," he said.

The DSU deals only in marijuana, hashish, and "Buddha sticks" (the top of the marijuana plant) and now sends about 180 pounds of marijuana each year through the mail.

Charging $39 an ounce, all the profits are ploughed back into a free legal service for people on drug charges, expansion of the business, and promotion of the political wing, called the "Apolitical Party."

Carey says the party will run 12 candidates in south Australian seats in the next federal election.

The party's platform would be legalizing marijuana growing, legalizing prostitution, encouraging people to go back to the land and run farms, the right of people to work or not to work at government expense, a free education system, more rights for mental hospital patients, more diversity in the mass media, and making the northern territory city of Darwin a free port.

Carey emphasizes the DSU does not want the selling of marijuana legalized.

"If that happens the big tobacco companies will get in on it and rip everybody off," he says.

The DSU simply wants marijuana growing legalized so people can cultivate their own needs in their own backyards, he says.

Carey said that at present about 30 major marijuana dealers were operating in Australia with several thousand dealers buying from them.

"It's mostly controlled by criminals who are involved in prostitution and gambling," he said.

The criminals also are pushing hard drugs which, according to Carey, the DSU's analysis service has found that some of the marijuana sent to it has been mixed with opium.

"Legalizing the growing and possession of marijuana will put the criminals out of business," Carey said.

With the assistance of nine Adelaide lawyers, the DSU is now run by 34 people, all under 30.

Advertisements in newspapers make a special introductory offer of a free sample "joint" to anyone who wants it.

Allocation Orders Do Not Expire

All fuel allocation orders issued by the Dallas office of the Federal Energy Administration are effective until expiration of the program and do not expire December 31, 1974, unless otherwise stated, according to Delbert M. Fowler of Dallas, regional administrator for the Energy Administration.

Fowler said the FEA office in Dallas has had a number of inquiries from representatives of petroleum firms who had the misconception that all allocation orders expire at the end of the current calendar year.

"This is absolutely not true," declared Fowler. "Any orders we have made from this office remain in effect until the end of the program or until some official change is made in writing from this office," he added.

Allocations are made for each month, explained Fowler, noting that the allocation for any given month remains the same unless an official change is made by the Dallas office of FEA or until the program expires.

"For instance, the January 1975 allocation will remain the same as for January 1974, unless some official change is made."

The Dallas office is responsible for the petroleum allocation program for the southwestern United States, which comprises Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

Reuters International News Briefs

WASHINGTON

Americans were advised to "color it gold" on December 31 when they could once again own pure gold after 41 years of prohibition. Newspaper advertisements have been literally screaming the virtues of the metal which has been the most generally acclaimed store of wealth for 6,000 years of recorded history.

HONG KONG

The Arabs are stepping up trade and financial links with this money minded British colony. A Hong Kong trade between the Arab countries and Hong Kong is expected to top $300 million this year.

SINGAPORE

The rig-building industry is booming in Southeast Asia as extensive offshore oil exploration goes on in the region. Almost every month there is news of oil finds, particularly in Indonesian waters. Oil men have yet to strike it rich, but they are optimistic.

PARIS

France is embroiled in debate over whether abortion should be available on demand—and if the pro-abortion forces win, it will be largely due to the efforts of Simone Veil, the 47-year old minister of health. In this predominantly Catholic country a situation has existed for years, with law enforcement officials turning a blind eye to the hundreds of thousands of back-street abortions that are carried out illegally in France each year.

BUENOS AIRES

A cat and a month-old baby have something in common in Argentina—they both need an official passport photograph to leave or enter the country. Nobody or nothing escapes the labyrinth of bureaucracy here.

BONN

Officials at West Germany's unemployment offices are busy for the first time in two decades. More than 800,000 workers are collecting either unemployment or short-time money, according to figures from the federal labor office.

EDINBURGH

It has been a good year for Celtic nationalism in Britain. The Scottish National Party has changed the face of politics in Scotland, and its Welsh equivalent has made its first real breakthrough into British affairs. Both parties want their respective countries in the north and west of the British mainland to have completely independent status.

Some say that wearing lapis lazuli counteracts the wiles of the Devil and insures help from the angels.

Sino-Soviet Dispute Still Continues

PEKING

Reuter--The Sino-Soviet border dispute, festering after five years of negotiations, appears even further from solution following the publication of a magazine article setting out preconditions for settlement which the Russians have already rejected.

Observers here say that the article in the journal Historical Research indicates that the Chinese, confident of their ability to handle a Soviet attack, are prepared for the dispute to drag on indefinitely with no concessions on their part.

Besides returning to a five-point proposal already rejected by the Russians, the article suggests that the Soviet Union should withdraw its troops from Mongolia and cut its border forces to the level of the Krushchev era if it really wants to resolve the border problem.

It also calls on the Soviet Union to stop provoking armed conflicts and carrying out maneuvers in the border areas, and to stop sending spies to China.

Among the five points proposed as a basis for a border settlement is the demand, already turned down by the Russians, that they must admit that the present frontiers are the result of "unequal treaties" imposed on a weak China by the 19th and early 20th century czars after seizing vast tracts of Chinese territory.

Equally unacceptable to the Russians is the proposal that both sides withdraw their troops from disputed border areas.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev said last month in reply to a Chinese offer of a non-aggression pact linked to troop withdrawals that there were no disputed areas and the Chinese were in effect trying to claim areas of Soviet territory.

The reference in the historical research article to Soviet spies may have been a deliberate reminder of two incidents earlier this year which sent Sino-Soviet relations tumbling to their lowest point since the 1969 border clashes.

Last January, the Chinese press printed an account of the capture of five Soviet diplomats based in Peking who it said were caught red-handed under a countryside bridge exchanging intelligence information and espionage equipment with a Soviet agent.

The Soviet embassy denied the charges, and neither a film of the dramatic incident made by the Chinese nor the capture of equipment has been shown to foreign diplomats here. The Soviet diplomats were expelled after being held incommunicado for four days.

Barely two months later the Chinese announced they had captured the three-man crew of a Soviet armed reconnaissance helicopter which had landed several times on Chinese territory in the far western Sinkiang region.

A Chinese protest note brushed aside Soviet claims that the helicopter was on a medical mission and had strayed across the border in bad weather as "a bunch of lies," and said that documents, arms and equipment found on board proved the men were spies.

The three Russians have been held for nine months by the Chinese, and a senior official recently told a visiting delegation that they would be tried under Chinese law.

Observers here believe the long delay between the capture and trial of the crew is due not of difficulty in assembling the evidence--which the Chinese claim is conclusive--but to their potential value as bargaining counters in the Sino-Soviet dispute.

Night Classes

Scheduled At TJC

Expanded class offerings are planned for the Continuing Education program at Temple Junior College for the spring semester, according to Douglas Ferrill, Director of Continuing Education and the Evening Division.

The expanded offerings are described in the Continuing Education class schedule now available at TJC, he said.

TJC's Continuing Education program, although only in its second full year at the college, will offer more than 25 credit-free courses beginning in January or February alone. Other classes will be added to the schedule as the semester gets underway in January, Ferrill said.

Additional information on classes, times of classes, and costs may be obtained from the Continuing Education Division at Temple Junior College, 773-9961, Ext. 66.

Some Boaters Ignore Explosive Situations

You'd expect most persons to be cautious when they are fooling with dynamite.

But when it comes to boating, some persons ignore an explosive situation which could literally blow them out of the water, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

The greatest cause of fire and explosions aboard recreational boats is gasoline fumes (vapor) collecting in the low parts of the boat (bilges).

Gasoline vapor is heavier than air and sinks to the lower compartments.

If a flow of clean air isn't present to blow gas vapor out of the boat, the vapor sits there waiting for the first spark.

A half pint of gasoline allowed to vaporize has the same explosive power as 15 sticks of dynamite.

The recreational boater can protect himself by making sure his boat has proper ventilation and by taking proper precautions while fueling.

No completely foolproof ventilation system has yet been developed. However, some form of adequate ventilation is required by law.

One common method of ventilation is to have fresh air channeled into low spaces using wind scoops (cowls.) Large, flexible tubes lead down to the areas to be ventilated from the wind scoops. A similar tube leads to the exhaust cowl where the collected vapor is vented safely overboard.

The intake cowl faces forward to scoop in the air and force it into the compartment which means this system works well only when the boat is going forward or where there is a breeze flowing from overhead.

The second method for forcing air into the engine and fuel-tank compartments involves a wind-activated rotary exhaust head on the boat's cabin roof.

The intake cowl on the side of the boat forces air into the boat and the rotary exhaust head draws it out. Again, this system depends on forward motion of the boat or a good breeze.

Special vapor and explosion-proof fans can also be used. If you choose a powered blower, make sure you select a spark-proof electric switch to turn it on.

There are several commonsense rules to apply when fueling. Forgetting one of them could cost you your life.

First, always fuel the boat in good light. When the boat is tied up at a fueling dock take all precautions against sparks and flames. Don't smoke, light matches or lighters, or operate electric switches. Stop engines, motors, fans, or anything else which can cause a spark. Secure all fires and galley stoves, and don't forget to extinguish the pilot lights on gas stoves and refrigerators.

Before you start to fuel, check your boat's mooring and get everyone out of the boat. Then check your tanks, filler pipes, tank vents, and flame screens, and check to see how much fuel the tank will take.

During fueling, keep the nozzle of the hose on the can in contact with the opening to prevent static sparks, and wipe up any spills immediately, making sure no vapor gets below.

After fueling, all caps for fill openings should be replaced. The boat should be opened up completely and aired out for five minutes. Give all low spots (engine bilges, tank spaces) the sniff test, and if you smell gasoline vapor continue to air out the boat.

In The Swim With Salmon
Salmon have long been in the mainstream of life in Scotland. And the anglers who pursue them are usually in the pink.

Those schooled in the ways of Scottish salmon know that the salmon of the west are Gaelic fish and those of Aberdeenshire are east coasters.

These fabulous fish, according to the Teacher's Scotch Information Centre, return from the sea to the river of their birth. Not many lose their way. Scent memories of icy pools and rapids guide them upstream, leaping in the sun and muscling through belching gorges.

Journey's end up from the sea is the headwaters of a mountain. On beds, where the water is so clear that it might as well not be there at all, the salmon spawn. And that's where life and death begin for some of the smaller fish. Many will be dead before the odyssey to the sea begins.

Great Barrier Reef Hides Deadly Creatures

AUSTRALIA
Reuter -- Beneath the friendly sunshine and surfing paradise depicted in Australia's tourist posters lies a deadly army of creatures ever ready to snap, strike, or sting.

Apart from the well-known threats like sharks, snakes, and poisonous spiders, there is a terrifying array of sea and land creatures which can attack and have already killed humans.

The tropical north of Australia is potentially the most dangerous place. The Great Barrier Reef, which stretches 1,250 miles just south of Papua, New Guinea, to the tropic of Capricorn, houses countless deadly tentacles.

The best known is the cubo medusa, or sea wasps, locally called the box jellyfish because of its shape.

It trails its 40-foot long tentacles in the waters off the northern beaches, where it is prolific in the summer months. The cubo medusa almost is invisible and its poison charged tentacles wrap themselves around unwary swimmers -- often with fatal results.

The tentacles, which are really colonies of individual single celled animals, inject microscopic darts into the skin of their prey, putting the venom straight into the bloodstream.

Dr. Jack Barnes, of Cairns, 1,200 miles north of Brisbane, has spent more than a decade developing antidotes.

Dr. Barnes has a strange fascination for cubo medusa. He keeps them in old tubs around his house, and even in the bath.

He has lost count of the number of times he has been stung by the jellyfish, and has built up a resistance to the toxin which keeps him relatively immune.

"The pain is still dreadful," he says. "The best thing you can do is to pour methylated spirits (methyl alcohol) all over yourself."

Almost as deadly as the sea wasp is the stone fish, an ugly grey-brown fish which lies motionless on the reef and is virtually impossible to distinguish from the rocks and coral.

If disturbed it levers up needle sharp spines which can pierce shoes. The poison causes extreme pain and often death.

The most venomous fish known, the stone fish, grows to about 12 inches long. It inspired such fear in Australian aborigines that they used it in their complex manhood initiation ceremonies. They also speared it and ate the flesh.

The barrier reef abounds in sharks. There are 30 species in Australia. The most dangerous man-eaters are whalers, pointers, grey nurses, and tiger sharks.

Other killers on the reef include highly venomous sea snakes, a tiny blue-ringed octopus with a beak-like mouth which injects poison known to kill a human being inside a minute; fast swimming barracuda with rows of shark-like teeth; several varieties of poisonous and shell fish; a cousin to the stone fish called the coral cod, and electric eels which can generate a charge of several thousand volts.

MILAM AREA PARADE OF SPORTS

The County Track Meet

Cameron High can't have everything. This year the county meet was held at Thorndale. The excellent Superintendent and the good people of that little town made a grand display of what good old Texas hospitality can be, and when the day was ended, everybody who attended the meet went home with grateful hearts for the joys that the day had brought.

Although we could not have the county meet, the boys were stimulated by the prospect of the trip, and the consequent successes in track and field were more than sufficient to appease our envy. Our girls were not especially inclined to athletics, hence they were only represented in declamation and spelling. The representatives for the spelling were selected only a few days previous to the contest and cannot be censured for not landing Cameron in the customary first place. Cameron was not represented in the boys' debate. In the declamation, the Junior girls' representative was Adelle Butcher who won first place. Anna Lou Baskin represented the Senior girls and won second place. James Coleman and Moulton Cobb were the Junior and Senior boys' representatives. Each took a third place.

The track and field, both Junior and Senior, were won by the Cameron boys at flood tide. First place was made in the Senior division in all but two events. In addition to the many first places, the boys took many second and third places which easily swelled the score to an enormous lead over the other schools.

C. E. Van Gert, the head coach of the University of Texas, was in charge of the meet. It was noticed that his keen eye for athletics in the making was highly pleased with the movements of Atkinson and Burke. He expressed himself as seeing quite a future for our boys who are excellent representatives of physical manhood which can come only from proper training and clean undissipated living.

This page from the 1917 Cam-Hi annual is being reproduced here to show the interest in sports even then in Cameron.

Walzel-Jernigan Recite Vows

At the United Methodist Church, Barksdale, on Saturday, December 28, Miss Zayne Ellen Jernigan and Jack E. Walzel Jr. were united in a candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Jernigan Jr. of Barksdale, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Walzel Sr. of Buckholts.

The Reverend Alfred A. DeKunder officiated at the double ring ceremony. Nuptial selections and the traditional wedding march were played on the organ by Mrs. Don Jackman. Pine topiary trees with holly and red tapers were used for aisle markers. The family pews were marked with green and red poinsettias. The altar was flanked with red poinsettias and candelabra with pine, holly, and red tapers. The gold cross in the center had a low arrangement of pine and red Christmas berries. The kneeling bench was decorated with clusters of pine and red holly.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza. The square neck and long full sleeves were banded with lace. A wide band of matching lace accented the waistline. Her waist length veil was attached to a headpiece designed of pearls. Her bouquet was of white carnations centered with a large white orchid. Her jewelry was a diamond pendant with a gold bracelet, gift from the groom.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Bill Luce of Goldwithe, and bridesmaid was Miss Temple Jernigan, also a sister of the bride. They were attired in red and green floor length formal gowns of double knit, styled with an empire waist. They carried green puff balls decorated with holly.

Attending the groom as bestman was his brother, Dale Walzel, of Kingsville. Groomsman was Carl Wayne Walzel of San Antonio, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Calvin Powers of San Angelo and Johnny Klecka of Rogers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Mary B. Powers Hall. The guests were registered by Temple Jernigan. The bride's table was laid with a white lace trimmed cloth and centered with a Christmas arrangement and white angels. The bride's cake was baked by Mrs. Ray Luce, a wedding gift to the bride and groom. It consisted of three tiers, separated by columns, decorated with white sugar roses and topped with white satin wedding bells.

Cake and punch were served by Mrs. Judy Gibbs, Mrs. Johnny Klecka, and Mrs. Calvin Powers.

The groom's table was centered with a red Christmas arrangement. The white fruit cake, German chocolate cake, and coffee were served by Liz Ann Ward and Peggy Hohman.

The bride is presently a senior and will graduate from Buckholts High School in May. The bridegroom is a graduate of Nueces Canyon High School and attended Sul Ross University and Sam Houston State University. He is presently engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Luce and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Luce hosted the rehearsal dinner in the Ray Luce home on Friday evening.

A Bar-B-Q supper was hosted for the wedding party and out of town guests by the grooms parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Pope, after the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the couple will reside at their home at Rt. 2, Buckholts.

Personal Mention

Returning from a week long trip to Mexico during the holidays were Mrs. Charles Hensarling and James Hensarling of College Station and Misses Cynthia Krieg and Beth Brock of Cameron. While in Mexico, they visited the art colonies of Guanajuato, San Miguel de Allende, San Potosi, and Ciudad de Valles, observing Mexican craftsmen at work with pottery, copperware, jewelry, and other crafts of the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Manness spent the Christmas and New Year holidays in Milwaukee, Wisconsin with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heffner, and family. On their trip they were accompanied by Georgann Wilkerson who remained for a longer visit.

Brock-Krieg Graduate From SWTSU

Mr. and Mrs. James Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Brock, and Edward Matula were among those recently attending winter commencement at Strahan Gymnasium at Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos.

Those from Cameron receiving Bachelor of Science Degrees in Education were Beth Brock and Cynthia Krieg, granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Brock. Beth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brock. Beth received her degree from the school of creative arts, while Cynthia received hers from the school of business.

Cynthia was an honor graduate of the professional schools.

SAS To Play Concert At Temple

The San Antonio Symphony Orchestra will play the second concert of the Central Texas Orchestral Society's "Full Season of Music, No. 2" on Tuesday, Jan. 14 at 8 p.m. at Temple High School.

Performed under the auspices of CTOS and the Cultural Activities Center the San Antonio Symphony will be directed by Maestro Victor Alessandro.

The evening program will include Poulenc's "Suite Francaise," Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G Major, Opus 88," "Overture Fantasy Romeo and Juliet" by Tschalkowsky and Richard Strauss' "Dance of the Seven Veils from 'Salome'."

Tickets for the evening concert are $4.50 for adults and $2.25 for students and will be available at the door.

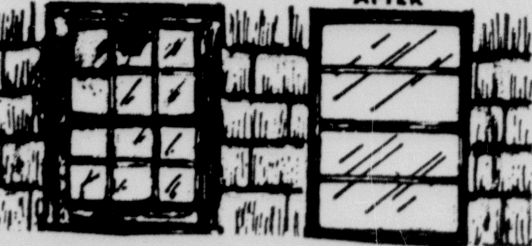

The "Full Season of Music, No. 2" is made possible by a matching grant from the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.
